PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I think our first meeting went well. The proposed budget was modified and approved; the last reading of the change in the by laws regarding Golden Gardens was read and will be deleted; we have volunteers who will sent up tables for our meetings; Jo Shaul had lots of awards to hand out for books sent in to California State Garden Clubs; our first place ribbon was displayed for all to appreciate. A big thanks again to Jerry Shaul and his committee for all the work they did putting it altogether. A special thanks to Karl who provided not only some of the equipment and supplies but muscles too. (He made sure Dad didn't lift stuff that was too heavy.)

Each time we do flower roll call, I am impressed with the interest and delight everyone takes in this part of our meeting. Members are saying how much they learn and how they want to incorporate a particular plant into their gardens. As long as we can move along at a reasonable rate, let's continue to make this an educational part of our meetings.

And I can't forget our new members, Susan Buckles, and Jim & Leanne Harvey. Welcome to our club and we hope you find it as much fun as the rest of us do.

Nancy Bailey's talk on daylilies was great. She's very passionate about them and knowledgeable in growing them. Most of us wanted to start finding sources of compost to add to our clay soil, go to the garden supply for Miracle Grow and fish emulsion and start our own daylily patch. Thanks Nancy.

Remember to take time to just enjoy your garden without looking at all the little things that need attention.

Good for the spirit! Jo J

Oct Program: Decorate Mini Pumpkins--October 20th, 10:30 AM

We will decorate mini pumpkins with natural materials such as dried flowers, leaves, cones, acorns, and seedpods. Tendrils from grapes or any vine or curled florist wire add a nice touch. You will need to bring to the workshop a mini pumpkin(s), decorative materials, scissors and fast drying glue. Additional decorating materials will be available along with a couple of hot glue guns.

"Carol, is it too late to disbud my mums to get bigger blooms for our show on the 13th of November? And what about aphids? What is a good natural spray for them? I don't want to use commercial toxic sprays." "For disbudding, it's best to do this as soon as the buds have formed. Place your thumb on the bud and roll it off. It will come disconnected from the flower head. Take all the buds off but the center one. All the nutrients will now go to the one flower. To treat for aphids, white flies and spider mites, first hose off your plant, let dry for an hour. Use a mixture of 1 cup Wesson oil, 1 cup water and 1 tsp dish soap which has been shaken thoroughly. Spray on your plants. It works every time."

Library Notes: Each month the library cart is rolled out and occasionally members will browse the shelves to see if anything catches their interest. There is always much to do before the meeting begins and often the library cart sits by its lonely self in the corner of the clubhouse.

Many of the books on the shelves were donated by members dating back to the 60's and 70's mostly. I even found a flower arranging book with a copyright date of 1945! Delightful to look through and I'm sure many of the same principles apply today.

Since our workshop for October's meeting will be making decorative pumpkins with Betty Atwood Reyna, I looked for a book in our library which would go along with our creative efforts. I found Making Gifts from oddments and Outdoor Materials, by Betsey Creekmore. The purpose of her book is to 'put something of yourself in the gifts you give'. She tells you how to create gifts using dried flowers, pinecones, pressed flowers, leaves and much more. How about hollowing out a small fresh pumpkin and filling it with cut chrysanthemums and colorful fall foliage?

There is also a chapter about herbs and seasonings. Here's a tip—instead of packaging each dried herb separately, combine some into 'fines herbs' which is a mixture of four herbs in equal proportions. For example, thyme, basil, savory and chives are great in an omelet. Basil, thyme, sweet marjoram and parsley mixed with softened butter makes a delicious spread for breads.

Next time I'll share highlights from some more recently published books I highly recommend for any gardener's library.

The Gentle Giant (Quercus lobata)

by Jerry Shaul

It had once been the Valley of the Giants. Giants that stood as much as 120 feet tall with bodies 9 feet thick and limbs that could reach out as much as 52 feet. During a life time, spanning as much a 499 years, protection was provided by a thick white-gray scaly skin broken into broad flat plates. These giants thrived in silt filled valleys and drank from old subterranean lake beds. "Sod busters" competing for fertile soil removed thousands of these gentle giants and after finding their hard, fine grained brittle tissue was not durable nor of commercial value used it to fuel their stoves and fireplaces. As a young boy I was given the task of sawing a fallen limb into firewood. The chain saw hadn't made the scene and only "girl boys" wore gloves. Two weeks and two swollen bloody blistered hands later the job was done. Moist brittle tissue coupled with lightning strikes and hot summer days resulted in a supply of large fallen limbs for Grandma's cook stove and the large old sand stone slab fireplace. Although these huge tent-like giants were used for shade, the limbs never overhung the farm house-for obvious reasons. Spring time! Each of these giants is clothed in a new highly textured green suit that is discarded before winter revealing its stout gnarly and twisted frame - a sculpture to behold. Adding to its beauty is the formation of thousands of tiny "gems" with which it reproduces the species and feeds a multitude of animals. With bucketfuls of these "gems" I helped Grandpa Jay fatten many a hog in the fall of the year. This "KING OF THE OAKS" has a number of common names but California or Valley White oak seems the most fitting. Wouldn't one be truly honored to have one of these long lived monumental giants planted in their memory.

GARDEN THERAPY: Jo J will be going to Clearlake on Oct 6th and Lucerne on Oct 15th to arrange her Lake County road treasures in a fall theme with the participants of Adult Respite. Both locations will start at 10:30; takes about 1/2 hour to 45 minutes and is very much appreciated by the participants and care givers. We're always invited for lunch and a stop at Wal-Mart is always in the plans when we go to Clearlake so put on your creative hats, bring along a shopping list and join her.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW PLANNING MEETING: We will be planning our mum show at the Kabatin Arrangers class on October 13th. Shirley Estrem will have returned from Switzerland by that time and oh how we depend on her expertise when it comes to MUMS. The show will be held on November 13th. at the Lakeport Yacht Club from 1 to 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served. It is free to the public.

OCT FIELD TRIP: We will be going to Sparetime Nursery in Willits on October 23rd. We will meet at the Safeway parking lot next to Meno-Lake Credit Union at 10 a.m. Jo D. has checked the nursery out and they will be having pansies and mums plus all kinds of great plants for our gardens. If you didn't sign up at the September meeting, be sure to call Jo D. (707-263-8549.) We will be carpooling and will need to coordinate that.

DISTRICT MEETING: If you plan to go to the District Meeting in Potter Valley on Oct 28th, please let Jo J know so we can coordinate the carpooling. This is an all day event meeting at 9:30 for social time, followed by business, lunch and other interesting information that makes us connected to the larger picture of garden clubs. And you get to meet lots of people who are interested in gardening.

CHRISTMAS WREATHS: If you didn't pick up an ordering envelope for our Christmas wreaths at the meeting, Jo J and Linda Pyers have them. The frames have arrived; the ribbon is here for the bows; our greenery situation looks very promising with Rod Skeleton giving us his trimmings from his Christmas tree lot.

Your new Nominating Committee: Nora Gerrard and Helen Turley. We need one more member. Please, won't you consider helping?

“Inviting Birds and Wildlife to Your Garden”

The Redbud Audubon Society welcomes all Lake County gardeners to attend the Audubon chapter meeting on Thursday, October 15, 7:00 pm at Kelseyville High School (Big Auditorium).

Speaker Julie Serences, Education Chair at Sacramento Audubon Society teaches workshops showing people how to become land stewards of their own piece of land by creating habitat for birds and wildlife.

Over the past eight years, Julie worked on a backyard restoration of her own property using California Native Plants. Through her research and experience, she developed practical knowledge that she now shares with others interested in making their yards and gardens welcoming with food, shelter, and water that birds, and animals need.
